

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention provides a receptacle made by molding in a mold defining a join plane, the receptacle comprising a body comprising an end wall, comprising a periphery and a neck connected to said end wall, wherein the end wall comprises at least one step extending in the join plane over at least a major part of a distance between the neck and the periphery of the end wall.